

ENRS PRIVACY STATEMENT

OUR COMMITMENT TO PRIVACY

What information do we collect?

ENRS collects information to provide better services to all of our members. When you become a member of ENRS you provide personal and institutional information that is saved in our secure database and is only used by ENRS to communicate with you about ENRS news, programs and events. ENRS will not sell, distribute or exchange information that is collected when you purchase a membership or product on our website without your permission, you may opt out at anytime. The information you provide when you register as a member is viewable only by ENRS members and staff in online forums and during the processing of ENRS business.

How do we use it?

Our website systems do not automatically capture any personal information identifiable to you, including your e-mail address, unless you specifically give it to us.

In order to fulfill your requests or provide you with information that you request it will be necessary at times to ask for certain personal information such as your name and address, telephone number or e-mail address. We may use this information to contact you with questions or information about payments you may make or provide services to you. We also may use this information to keep our members and friends informed about Society activities.

How does ENRS protect customer information?

When you place orders or access your account information, we use a secure server. This secure server software, SSL (Secure Sockets Layer) encrypts all information you input before it is sent to us. Furthermore, all of the customer transactional data we collect is protected against unauthorized access with the use of digital certificates. Digital certificates for ENRS is issued by VeriSign. To learn more about our online security, simply click on the "Security" icon (it usually appears as a padlock) in your browser tool bar, at the bottom of your browser window.
